

Forgivable

MercyMe

To the guilty and reckless
To the too far gone
You think you don't deserve
To ever hear the words
Child, welcome back home

All the pain that you're holding
All the shame that you hide
You think you don't deserve
To ever hear the words
Child, you're still mine

Come as you are
Not as you should be
Come to the table
Taste and see

There is a love that won't let go
Just look at the cross and you will know
No matter how much you messed up
You are still forgivable
If there is a grace beyond compare
To even the ones who nailed Him there
Then even your guilt and shame
Your worst mistakes can be restored
You are still forgivable
You are still forgivable

Your sins are forgotten
Your past left behind
Let go of who you are and
Fall into His arms open wide

Like water in the desert
Sunshine through the rain
Your soul finds worth
Now that you've heard Him say

There is a love that won't let go
Just look at the cross and you will know
No matter how much you messed up
You are still forgivable
If there is a grace beyond compare
To even the ones who nailed Him there
Then even your guilt and shame
Your worst mistakes can be restored
You are still forgivable
You are still forgivable

Come out, come out, come out
From hiding
Child you will always be worth finding

Come out, come out, come out
From hiding
Child you will always be worth finding

There is a love that won't let go
Just look at the cross and you will know
No matter how much you messed up
You are still forgivable
If there is a grace beyond compare
To even the ones who nailed Him there
Then your guilt and shame
Your worst mistakes can be restored
You are still forgivable
You are still forgivable
You are still forgivable
You are still forgivable