

Who You Are

MercyMe

The sky around me is turning black
I can't see ahead of me and I can't see back
I've been going for miles and miles
Lord, please tell me, is this worthwhile?
I don't know

Like a travelling circus, the painted town
Painted smiles are on every frown
Lord, I'm sick of all these masks
The naked truth is all I ask of You

Can't they see me for who You are?
Can't they see me for who You are?
It seems that falling down is a past time of mine
Take my dirty water, Lord, and change it into wine
Heal my wounds but don't take my scars
Let them see me for who You are

Let my heart smile upon me now
Eternal joy, why don't you hang around?
All the earth is what I see
The inheritance of the blessed me, oh yeah

What if I'm the only glance of You they see?
What if how I live of what I say
Persuades their eternity?

Can't they see me for who You are?
Can't they see me for who You are?
It seems that falling down is a past time of mine
Take my dirty water, Lord, and change it into wine
The sky around me is getting thin
I see what's ahead of me and I have no fear
I'll keep going for miles and miles
'Cause the Lord said it's all worthwhile
Heal my wounds but don't take my scars
Let them see me for who You are
Let them see me for who You are
Let them see me for who You are
