

Return to San Francisco

Merle Haggard

Should we ever lose each other somewhere along the way
Return to San Francisco, I'll be somewhere by the bay
Climb the bridge, just comb beaches, ride the trolley cars again
Roam the hillsides of the city, count the seagulls in the wind

But return to San Francisco, always keep this vow to me
Return to San Francisco, we'll make one more memory

But return to San Francisco, always keep this vow to me
Return to San Francisco, we'll make one more memory
