

Should I

Mike Ryan

I know I'm right, but I wanna be so wrong
I wanna be here with you dear, but I keep hearing that same old song
Tellin' me that I'm a fool, and that you don't love me so
I'm already two steps ahead just wonderin' where to go

Should I, sit here down the street?
Or do I push it back in gear
Or leave you drownin' in your tears
Should I turn around and run
Back through the door, into your arms
Right where I belong

I've heard the lies before
You don't tell 'em and that's what hurts more
I wish you'd speak to me, baby, say what's on your mind
See I'm not gonna lay here, not gonna wonder, I'm not gonna sta rt the fight
My bottles lit, I'm whiskey bent
I'm lookin' for hell tonight

Should I, sit here down the street?
Or do I push it back in gear
Or leave you drownin' in your tears
Should I turn around and run
Back through the door, into your arms
Right where I belong

Should I?
Even tell you that I'm packin' up
Or just leave you girl, it don't mean that much
I just hope that you can make it fast
You don't have to listen, it's not my way
I wrote this for you to hear me say
That I love you, and he can't take that away
(No, oh)

Should I, sit here down the street? (oh)
Or do I push it back in gear
Or leave you drownin' in your tears
As I, I turn around I run, I'd run
Back through the door, into your arms
Right where I belong
