MIKE

Burning Desire, by Michael J. Bonema: a dark romantic horror with comedic twists. It tells the tale of a fire so deeply rooted in revenge and devastation, masked with an intricate beauty. It begins somewhere along the borders of Liberia and Côte d'Ivoire, the home of the Dan tribe. A mediocre mask carver, kin to the tribe, hails the weight of lackluster dexterity. His masks bring him ridicule amongst the community. With days and months of a building desire to make an impressive mask and to only be met with failed attempts, he grew vengeful
