

Rabbit Hole

Mindy Gledhill

Little one, little one, you're on the run
Like a flickering shadow in the sinking sun
You've covered many miles now
Too many miles for being so terribly young

Little one, little one, you hear the call
Of the wild in the woods when the darkness falls
You take a tumble clumsily
It's nobody's fault you couldn't see

Now you're falling down the rabbit hole
It's terrifying and wonderful

Little one have a peek through the door and see
To be upside down is a fine way to be
Come sit to tea and drink your fears
Swallow the river of your tears

While they're falling down the rabbit hole
It's terrifying and wonderful
Crawling through the rabbit hole
It's death defying and beautiful

Even when you're broken
There are always doors to open
New dimensions to explore
But you won't know until you're in a thousand pieces on the floor

And you're falling down the rabbit hole
It's terrifying and wonderful
