Twenty Years Later

Mint Condition

Stole my momma's TV, and DVD player
To get what I need to feel a little better
Married my best friends wife
So cold, I never thought twice
Maybe not the best thing I've done, in my life

I wonder why my life hasn't changed
20 years later, still doing the same thing
But if my friends ever needed me I'd be there for them
As long as it's not money or an ex-girlfriend
One of my boys got me a good, good job
And I needed to borrow some money
Ain't call them at all
It's kinda like I left out
Now I'm with another friends ex
Told her she can't call
He's my roommate would be drama
But really I'm married
Just turned 47
And now I'm back here with my mama

I wonder why my life has not changed
20 years later still, doing the same thing
I wonder why my life has not changed
20 years later still, doing the same thing
I wonder why my life has not changed
20 years later still, doing the same same thing...

I meant to change so my life can change
I need to change, got all these things
Things to help be a man of my word
Cause I'm hurting so
My brothers think I'm lazy
Cause I'm living off my mom (my mom)
They think I need, need a job
They don't understand that I already have a job (a job)
I take some friends I'm praying I'm not...

I wonder why my life has not changed
20 years later still, doing the same thing
I wonder why my life has not changed
20 years later still, doing the same thing
