

Stepped On A Bee

MisterWives

It's kinda funny, I stepped on a bee
The morning I heard you were leaving
The worst sting was you didn't call
Had to hear from what others were saying
Had no warning, but deep down I knew
It was heading straight towards me
No point running away from what would Eventually catch up with us

Growing up and growing out
Of lovers and places and friends
But staying stuck when you've had enough
Is something I won't do again

So go on your way, I won't try to stop you
I wish you would stay but there's nothing I can do
We're all the clichés I swore would never come true
But they all do

They all do
They all do

It was sunny the day it all stopped
Kinda funny, the forget-me-nots
Staring at me while you forgot
About all the promises we made
When you're living out all of the dreams
We were planning, I hope you're happy
I imagine you flying high in fancy jets
And I can't help but wonder if you have regrets

Growing up and growing out
Of lovers and places and friends
But staying stuck when you've had enough
Is something I won't do again

So go on your way, I won't try to stop you
I wish you would stay but there's nothing I can do
We're all the clichés I swore would never come true
So go on your way after all that we've been through
You just walk away like there's nothing left to lose
We're all the clichés I swore would never come true
But they all do

They all do
They all do

I should have known, I should have seen
This would always be bittersweet (they all do)
I should have known, I should have seen
This would always be bittersweet

So go on your way, I won't try to stop you
I wish you would stay but there's nothing I can do
We're all the clichés I swore would never come true
So go on your way after all that we've been through

We're all the clichés I swore would never come true
But they all do
Go on your way after all that we've been through
We're all the clichés I swore would never come true
But they all do
