

He

Moby Grape

He said he found himself and gave away the things he called his own

He awoke and told his friend things he'd seen and heard but could not comprehend

And so taken back by what he had just said

He cried, "Oh Lord, am I alive or dead?"

He was shattered when he saw how everything's exactly as it seems

He then able to admit saw his thoughts drift into unimportant schemes

So he found himself a pawn to cop the score

Of all those games we play and then ignore

He wandered off alone to search for someone else to passively agree

He then felt no further need to hold it peacefully within was proof indeed

And he found himself a pawn to cop the score

Of all those games we play and then ignore
