I built a wall around me wouldn't let anyone inside love would just bring more heartbreak into this heart of mine thought I was fine alone then you touched me without touching me held me without holding me moved this heart of stone gave this heart a home.

Thought that I didn't need anybody but me thought my life was better without love didn't want to begin letting somebody in wasn't saving my heart for someone didn't think I could change then you changed everything just when I thought I'd never find love love found me.

You broke through all the walls you saw someone no-one could see you shined the light of love where the shadows used to be thought I was fine and free then you reached me when you reached for me touched something so deep in me showed my heart the truth my heart belongs with you.

Thought that I didn't need anybody but me thought my life was better without love didn't want to begin letting somebody in wasn't saving my heart for someone didn't think I could change 'til you changed everything just when I thought I'd never find love love found me.

I know I told myself
I'd never give my heart to someone else
but you chased out all the doubt from my mind
I've waited for you for all my life.

Thought that I didn't need anybody but me thought my life was better without love didn't want to begin letting somebody in wasn't saving my heart for someone didn't think I could change then you changed everything just when I thought I'd never find love love found me oh.

Love found me.