The Lust Called Knowledge

Mors Principium Est

The pleasures and the temptations they hold our mind and flesh "now release me" the price of lust called sacrifise the silence bow before me

In the sky the angels defeat in the clouds the winds so grey sun has lived a thousand lives he made the winds so pale

The ancient one in the emptiness we call his name awake "open your eyes" please set us free of this torment where is the knowledge we have to find

In the sky the angels defeat in the clouds the winds so grey sun has lived a thousand lives he made the winds so pale see the light the flames of desire and maek our heart go vain let us climb the mountains of passion and see the futures way