

What?

Mount Eerie

What do I want with my life now that I'm blinded by your light?

Should I keep trying to see through it or just lovingly close them, should I?

What do I want now that the air leaves my lungs and I roll over to you in the night?

Should I breathe you in, you'll float in

What do I want when we're apart, now that I'm wed to you?
I am holding open door, though I will not contain you

What do I want with my soft skin now that you've eaten me, my bride?

Nothing, I do not want, just let me feed you

What do I endlessly ask about now that your love swells and pounds me?

I know nothing now that I know you, your fog's wrapped around me

Invisible inside, dumb and blind
Newborn babies come to life on my face

They say "Ta-da!"
