

Evergreen

Mt. Joy

This is the part where you're asking, "Why"
Along a road where everything dies
This is the part where you waste your time worried, wondering
Love, of course it's going to change us
Like if I knew the way life would be pointless

I'll teach you to jump through the holes in the road that changes
And trust you to want to be my evergreen daydream

Oh, this is the part where your engine dies
And you decide you've been running all your life
Oh, this is the part where your wedding diamond ring gets pulled across your eye
Oh why, oh why, oh why
Oh why, oh why, oh why, oh why
Love, of course it's going to change us
But if I knew the way life would be pointless

I'll teach you to jump through the holes in the road that changes
And trust you to want to be my evergreen daydream

Oh, oh, oh
Oh, oh, oh, oh
In a thunderous laugh, you grow up too fast
You forgot to take pictures of the life we wished for

Oh, I'll teach you to jump through the holes in the road that changes
And trust you to want to be my evergreen daydream
