

intimidation has put me thru what i need to stand up to you don't protest i've made up my mind i've got to leave it all behind i believed so many times your deceit too many lies my hope for you in decadence can't replace what's torn apart it took me such a long time to realize i was an instutution for you go where you want to go know who you want to know now i know that i was lied to sometimes i see your lighter side the part of you try to hide it's true you still don't seem to care never a word only a stare no one has ever known you you don't even know yourself your best friend's your enemy too what else can i say to you it took me such a long time to realize i was an instutution for you go where you want to go know who you want to know now i know that i was lied to
