

Scene 7: Consequences

Naethan Apollo

[Captain Oldevich:] Disgraceful. Shameful. Outrageous behaviour. You cranks have absolutely zero respect for authority. I expected this from a dull like Duss and Tess, but Tyler and Apollo? Well, is just... disappointing. Do you have anything to say for yourself?

[Tyler:] It was my idea, sir. I wrapped Apollo into it

[Captain Oldevich:] And yet, look at you. Not a single bag under your eyes. You must've slept like a damn baby

[Tyler:] Yes, sir

[Captain Oldevich:] You don't regret what you did at all, do you?

[Tyler:] No, sir

[Captain Oldevich:] You'd do it again, wouldn't you?

[Tyler:] Maybe, sir

[Captain Oldevich:] Maybe? Well, maybe you and Appolo would be better off kicked out into the swale!

[Tyler:] I like to think we wouldn't, sir

[Captain Oldevich:] Well, that's not for you to decide!

[Commander Hakim:] Correct, Captain. It's for me, to decide. But thank you, for expressing your views on the matter

[Captain Oldevich:] Hum...

[Commander Hakim:] Tyler, why do all this just for seafood?

[Tyler:] It wasn't just "seafood", ma'am. It was leviathan. A lot of people in the squad, myself included, come from so far inland. That stuff is a delicacy

[Commander Hakim:] I see

[Commander Hakim:] Recruits! by show of hands, who here has never had high quality leviathan, and would like to? Be truthful!

[Narrator:] The commander observes the room as cautiously, on by one, almost all of the recruits raised their hands [Commander Hakim:] Well, we ought to fix that. Head to your bunks and pack a go-bag. We'll be leaving on a multi-day expedition in one hour. Dismissed!

[Narrator:] The recruits all scrambled to their bunks, and begin to hastily pack their things, as commander Oldevich pulls commander Hakim to the side

[Captain Oldevich:] Where are you going with this?

[Commander Hakim:] We're headed north. To the Fassidyen sea. There's a mariner up there who owes me a favour

[Captain Oldevich:] Sounds like you're rewarding bad behaviour with a field trip

[Commander Hakim:] A cornerstone of this project, captain, is to go against the grain. Tyler discovered that both he and many of his squadmates have a desire to consume leviathan. He then w ent to unreasonable measures to try and achieve that goal for h is squad. At its core, that is a trait I'd like to encourage. A fter all, some people think this whole project of mine is an un reasonable measure. Correct?

[Captain Oldevich:] Uhm, some of the... rest certainly seem to think so

[Commander Hakim:] Right. Well, what I don't want to encourage is poor planning. Or having their desires delivered straight to their front door. If the squad wants to eat a leviathan, they'
ll have to work together to kill one themselves