Prelude

Nana Mouskouri

The wind in the willow is humming a soft and gentle song I feel the touch of him as he whispers in the dawn Was it a blade of grass that made me open my heart ? Or wasn't it a most natural thing to do?

Fell the golden shower sprinkle over you As the morning opens her eyes, it's all so new The air is as still as the sunbeams that fall upon my face I close my eyes and listen to all the sound of day

From all around me I feel the warmth of my love The gentle breezes caress me with a sigh The sky overhead is all aglow A murmuring brook begins to flow I lower my eyes but now I really know There's a feeling of love inside of me A feeling that makes me want to be and love

Now as the moon is shining bright I was content to sleep in the coolness of the night For now I know my love awaits With arms open wide As all the dreams of tomorrow come to me In my heart I know jusy where I want to be I close my eyes till the dawn