

Where The Heart Is (Car Chat)

Naomi Raine

I've always heard people say, "Home is where the heart is," and That's always been really beautiful to me
But I think the older I get, I started to realize that I didn't really know where my heart was What did I really love? What did I really care about?
And for somebody like me, it was easy to just do what I was sup posed to do
And not really pay attention to where my heart really was So, I never felt like I was at home
