

Who Will Carry On

Natalie Cole

Well lately I've been thinking about the ways of men
The sun is slowly sinking, and should it rise again?
I wonder do we know tomorrow is not a promise?
And who will carry on?

I wonder who will lift us out of sadness
And will not fear the change
And won't they be surprised to find it rearranged
I wonder do we know who is to carry on

I wonder don't misunderstand my feelings
I am searching just like you
I would like to know for sure
If you'll see me through
And if we're still in tune
Oh can I trust in you?
There's something we must do

'Cause, lately I've been thinking about the ways of men
The sun is slowly sinking and should it rise again
I wonder do we know tomorrow is not a promise?
And who will carry on?

I wonder who
I really wonder who Yes, I'm wondering, wondering who Will lift us out of sadness, and will not fear the change
And won't they be surprised to find it rearranged, I'm wonderin g
Who will carry on?

Yes I wondering, wondering, wondering
I'm wondering who will carry on
Can I trust in you?
Will you see me through?
Can I put my faith in you? Who will will endure?
Who will be strong? Who will, who will, who will carry on?
