Natalie Jane

Feel like a prisoner but I'm staring at an open door
Lost in a prism of all the places that I've been before

My hands wanna catch you, they linger but then you're falling
Like sand running right through my fingers I feel you slipping
I can't keep a foot on the edge
I can't keep on holding my breath

I need you now
And forever
Time's running out
Now or never
I hear the sound of your love in the distance
I feel the heat of your touch if I listen
I need you now
And forever
Now or never, oh

Open my mind and you show me all the light I've never seen
Maybe it's time to admit that you are where I wanna be

My hands wanna catch you they linger but then you're falling
Like sand running right through my fingers I feel you slipping
I can't keep a foot on the edge
I can't keep on holding my breath

I need you now
And forever
Time's running out
Now or never
I hear the sound of your love in the distance
I feel the heat of your touch if I listen
I need you now
And forever
Now or never
