

Low Threshold

Navy Blue

The storm is passin'
How will I survive amidst all that has happened? Held me captive
Victim of my pride at times I'm all reaction
The slow burn is waiting for the magic Caught lacking principles before the personalities like don't you see yourself and who you after?
Uh, it's all love but I don't hate when I'm alone I got my heart to cast and plaster, body chiseled out the stone
Roam, where you go and where you gone
If you told a little lie but you know how it feel to rob
Towered over flaws like a dark cloud
Heart pounding, sending ripples through the bog
All along it was me
I couldn't leave without rewriting the wrongs
I will breathe life in these songs because I'm allowed to pause
Peace allowed until serenity exists when I'm colliding with what is
If it wasn't me then it was God who saw me quit
She pulled me out the water like my mama saw a gift
My sister found God that was my papa dying wish
Why does life feel like a hug and death is just a kiss?
Don't you drift away from us and fall in that abyss
It's nothing short of luck
I receive what you transmit
Cancerous antics that led me to the crypts

Led me through the crypts
Spirit

Please believe me, this a treaty I done signed it, I'm reminded of the times that ain't align with us
The bean stalk I'm climbing up
We reaching outward tryna grab what we can find in us, whole time...
You decide your own fate, you can make your own way
Pessimism won't stay
It ain't always candles and cake
One foot in front the other is the right pace
Wrong place, right time, at least that's what the plight say
Type shit
Navy just a vessel couldn't write this
His likeness is settled in the light
Where the hype is
Money ain't make him, but the dollar is a motherfucker
My tax dollar killing children and they mothers...
Fathers, aunties, cousins, uncles, all that Guess it's safe to say the bottom is the place to fall at

I call that grace
Make haste and make most of what you call a safe place