

I Hope She Won't Come Back

Never Heard of It

She's walking away with a smile on her face
A little glad she's ready to go
She'll get on her plane and tell a stranger she's great
And talk about the places she knows

She says she's never going back to Diego
She's been around the world and changed a few times
No don't get long her hair is strong as her dominant eyes

I hope this time she won't come back
Find the right train on a different track
Please don't come back cause I'll be waiting

She's walking away from even worse than before
Waking up with bruises and scars
Drugs that are substitutes to deal with the pain
I hear she's heading back on cocaine

She says she's got to stay away from Vegas
She's got to run from all the people she knows
The girl has told me all I know
About the beautiful things that she's wasted

I hope this time she won't come back
Find the right train on a different track
Please don't come back cause I'll be waiting
And I'll try and hold back tears in my eyes
Remember the good times we sat on the rollercoaster rides
For all my life I'll be waiting

And I'll let her know that she's doing alright
Find some new friends and someone to hold her close at night
For all my life I'll be waiting
