

You'll never see a straight face from me
I've got a problem showing emotion and sucking up my guts
You'll never get an answer from me
I always keep it stuck in my head
A million words I could have said
You say you're so overwhelmed with grief and it's because of me

Don't you say, you know I heard you said you know
Don't you say, you know anything about me
Don't you say, you know I heard you said you know
Don't you say, you know anything about me

I'll never show you my frustrations
I'll act accordingly to hold it back
I find it hard to just relax

Please disregard my opinion
I try to only give it when I'm asked
Helps to get it off my chest
You say you're so overwhelmed with grief and it's because of me

So, don't you say, you know I heard you said you know
Don't you say, you know anything about me
Don't you say, you know I heard you said you know
Don't you say, you know anything about me

The point has been right in front of you in plain view
The past does not only repeat, it haunts you
I can't get the words you said out of my head
Out of my head, my head

Don't you say, you know I heard you said you know
Don't you say, you know anything about me
Don't you say, you know I heard you said you know
Don't you say, you know anything about me