

Storms

Nick Carter

Baby, I can remember
I wish that I could forget
Everything that I've been through
Almost every step

Yeah, I don't know where I'm going now
But yeah, I know where I've been
And when the thunder is rolling
It sounds just like an old friend

Coming back like a ghost on the wrong side of heaven
I wanna see bluer skies, baby, just for a second

So I try to raise a sail and ride the wind
When the dark comes blowing in
And I pray that all the pain of the hurricane
Will wash away again someday

Somewhere that last tidal wave
Will crash upon my shore
But in my heart I know
There'll always be one more
'Cause all my life
I've been surrounded by the storms

Somewhere on the horizon
The flashbulbs burn in the night
Pulling me like a beacon
Out into the spotlight

Can't get out of the danger
For anywhere safer
Away from the chasers
And all that I'm facing
No, I didn't make 'em
But I'm gonna make it

So I try to raise a sail and ride the wind
When the dark comes blowing in
And I pray that all the pain of the hurricane
Will wash away again someday

Somewhere that last tidal wave
Will crash upon my shore
But in my heart I know
There'll always be one more
'Cause all my life
I've been surrounded by the storms

Coming back like a ghost on the wrong side of heaven
I wanna see bluer skies, baby, just for a second

So I try to raise a sail and ride the wind
When the dark comes blowing in
And I pray that all the pain of the hurricane
Will wash away again someday

Somewhere that last tidal wave
Will crash upon my shore
But in my heart I know
There'll always be one more
I know that it's all still worth fighting for
'Cause all my life
I've been surrounded by the storms
