

Chapters

Nicky Romero

Blurring the ink till it fades
Wait for your mistakes to disappear
How do we learn from the pain
When we're holding the past like a souvenir

When you're sinking like a stone, feeling all alone
You can always start again
And if you're lost in the unknown
No matter where you go, you will always make it home

We're all burning chapters, one more page to get it right
Who cares what comes after, try to leave it all behind

No point in holding on once it's gone, just keep moving on
We're all burning chapters, one more page to get it right

(One more page to get it right)

We're all burning chapters, one more page to get it right

Try to leave it all behind

We all got a story to tell
We're stuck on the edge of the final line
Reading it back doesn't help

When there's so many chapters left to write

When you're sinking like a stone, feeling all alone
You can always start again
And if you're lost in the unknown
No matter where you go you will always make it home

We're all burning chapters, one more page to get it right
Who cares what comes after, try to leave it all behind

No point in holding on once it's gone, just keep moving on
We're all burning chapters, one more page to get it right

(One more page to get it right)

We're all burning chapters, one more page to get it right

Try to leave it all behind

No point in holding on once it's gone, just keep moving on
We're all burning chapters, one more page to get it right