

Someday But Not Today

Nightmare Of You

You're sulking through the city rain You're late for work and scrambling towards the station
And you ask yourself,
"Well, when will I finally get a little reprieve"

And in the subway car an attractive person smiles at me and I deprecate
We are children of divorce, so please give us a break;
And speaking of a break,
when will we get that break?
I'll tell you when!

Someday, but not today
Someday, but not today

In the darkness of my life you're the light
A bulb, blooming delicately and burning bright Budding against nature and all of its blight

And I don't want to fight I just want to be a big part of your life

Someday, but not today
Someday, but not today

We think too much
We feel too much
We are too much
We take too much
We don't want to die;
Don't be so guileless!

We just don't...
We just don't want to exist

Someday, but not today
Someday, but not today
Someday,
(And if you're ever feeling alone, this song will be here to hold you)
but not today
Someday,
(And if you're ever feeling alone.
this song will be here to hold you)
but not today