

Patchwork Lover

Noah

I never felt like falling until I fell
But when my eyes first saw you
Was a matter of time before I hit the ground

You said this ain't no coffee shop classic my dear
And I won't fall for those words in my ears
By the time the church bells ring
I'll be gone with the coming spring

Cause I'm a patchwork lover with a quilted heart
And you sewed my stitches that fall apart so easily
My love
It's all the same
My thread is undone until only rags remain

Love give me fair warning
Before you go slipping away
It was my privilege to be yours for a moment
Oh but now I see all your ñ all your shades of gray

Cause I'm a patchwork lover with a quilted heart
And you sewed my stitches that fall apart so easily
My love
It's all the same
My thread is undone until only rags remain

'Til only rags remain
So stay here in my arms
Just like it's the start again
Baby we can start again
Oh and I will be the needle and thread
Just like you have been for me
And I'm hoping that you'll see
Hoping that you'll see
Hoping that you'll see

That you're a patchwork lover with a quilted heart
And I'll sew your stitches that fall apart so easily
My love
It never ends
And the halves of our hearts will beat into one again

Oh my love
