

Clock On The Wall

Nolan Taylor

The clock on the wall says we gotta get going
But we're already gone
The look in your eyes can pierce through the night like the moon
Our fingers are locked as we're silently staring
But you and I know it's the end
Just give me one night
One beautiful smile
Before I leave

What a beautiful night
The fog sets while I cry
I'm staring out thinking of you
I guess you were right
That I'll always love you too

I only hear breather and you snuffle softly
It breaks my heart every time
I think we all know it wasn't me who did wrong
And that's alright
I'll take me a seat while you're walking away
I'm lightheaded, I'm dizzy with shame
Who woulda thought a pretty lady could bring me so much pain

What a beautiful night
The fog sets while I cry
I'm staring out thinking of you
I guess you were right
That I'll always love you too

Those hands haven't changed
You know, they've looked the same
For what seems like a decade or two
The clown's in the corner, he's swaying and smiling to you
There's grass on my brain, or I'm seeing things
But I swear it was you standing there
Oh, and I'd go to hell
And suffer my fair
To have you back with me right here

What a beautiful night
The fog sets while I cry
I'm staring out thinking of you
I guess it's a sign
That I'll always love you too
