

I'm the one to search for happiness
Happiness is hard to find
Your smile's so blinding, ever-bright
It's only part of your disguise
Fools me every time

Throwing rocks out of the river bank
Sharing stories of our lives
You and all of your big-city dreams
I would have followed you anywhere

And I can't tell what's on your mind
See the world behind your eyes
Tasting crimson on my tongue
So much that I could say to you
There won't be another time
Another place to call you mine
Burning pictures, tearing pages
As I'm trying to get through
Everblue

Jet black nights
I'm talking to myself
I am the wolves inside my head
All the how's and whys and flashing lights
And mysteries you kept inside
No one could see, not even me

I can't tell what's on your mind
See the world behind your eyes
Tasting crimson on my tongue
Cause the words are coming through
There won't be another time
Another place to call you mine
Burning pictures, tearing pages
Missing every part of you
Everblue

And I can't tell what's on your mind
See the world behind your eyes
Tasting crimson on my tongue
So much I could say to you
There won't be another time
Another place to call you mine
Burning pictures and tearing pages
As I'm trying to get through
Everblue

And I can't tell what's on your mind
See the world behind your eyes
Tasting crimson on my tongue
Cause the words aren't coming through