Milk & Coffee

NoMBe

Don't wait for promises my love
They can't be measured up in gold
You weigh your heart so heavy
That's why you fumble when you walk
Yeah

If you want me today's your day 'cause
I'll make it worth your while
You seem special but have some patience
There's just one thing I need to know

Will you still love me in the morning?
Will you stay for milk & coffee?
Putting hours past the dawn in
Will you still love me in the morning?

I have no place for broken hearts
I tend to leave them where they fall
They're way too hard to carry
And I've bent my back for them too far

Call me old-fashioned
For even asking
It's just what I've been taught
The morning after, I need your presence
So tell me one thing now

Will you still love me in the morning?
Will you stay for milk & coffee?
Putting hours past the dawn in
Will you still love me in the morning?

I can be your pillow if you're feelin' lonely
Whatever's on your mind you can put it on me
Anything you want darling, know it's ok
I'll carry your weight baby, baby, all day
Together we'll make the perfect cure for heartache
So tell me if you're in or looking for a friend
'Cause I'm ready to swim darling
If you promise one thing
To love me in the morning
