

Tantrums

Normani

Had to get a drop on you, took a minute
But it's hard trying not to look back when you in it
Never thought you'd do me like that, but you did it
Said it's hard trying not to run back, we ain't finished
Don't you know that, huh, don't you know that, huh
All that shit you do to me gon' find its way back, huh
Tantrums, baby, huh, don't you throw that
Act just like a baby with your grown ass, huh
Don't you know that

You're nobody, you're just somebody I used to know
You're somebody I should've taken the time to call
You're nobody, you're just somebody I used to love from time to time
And that's alright
'Cause you're nobody, you're just somebody who's playing games
You're nobody, I'll never ever look at the same
When they ask you who loves you like I do, baby
Don't you say my name
You used to have it automatic

All you had to do was ask (how you could make it better)
All you had to do was ask (how to never watch me go)

And if it ever was, what you said it was
What you said it would be
You held on to me
Darling, no, you to held on to me
Evidence, evidence, evidence
I, I can only see it grow for awhile
Lies on lies on lies on lies
Well, you must not know me

All you had to do was ask (how you could make it better)
All you had to do was ask, and I'd have you surround me

How to never watch me go, go away
You'll never be okay, get out the way
Cut the brakes, hell, I'm done

You're nobody, you're just somebody I used to know
You're somebody I should've taken the time to close
You're nobody, you're just somebody I used to fuck from time to time
And that's alright

'Cause you're nobody, you're just somebody who's playing games
You're nobody, I'll never ever look at the same
When they ask you who loves you like I do, baby
Don't you say my name
You used to have it automatic
