

Not superficial like a shout
But slowly as we're graying out.
Things look different more and more
Things we actually adore.

There's a flame that burns inside
Every little doubt we hide.
It could show before we go
But do you really wanna know?

We still have today, we still have today.
Forget yesterday - it just couldn't stay.
We still have today.

Graffiti's all around the blocks
Say we're going to the dogs.
Tomorrow will be judgement day
Seems like we won't get away.

There's a flame that burns inside
Every little doubt we hide.
It could show before we go
But do you really wanna know?

We still have today, we still have today.
Forget yesterday - it just couldn't stay.
We still have today.

It's just a few that want to know
Who are we and where do we go.
If everyone would do, I guess
the world would be a better place.

There's a flame that burns inside
Every nascent hope we hide.
Some won't show before we go
What a wicked thing to know?

We still have today, we still have today.
Forget yesterday - it just couldn't stay.
We still have today.