Let me tell you a story, the life of a kid
Los Angeles to Seoul, tryin to make it big
Without a clue in the world
Fame and money on my mind
Knew nothing about the hardships
The struggles, the grind

Rewind to '011, flight overseas
New chapter in my life
Time for me to chase my dreams
Culture shock, hit me hard, givin up was taboo but
The people, the language, the lifestyle
Too much to go through

Blurred lines, couldn't make up my mind
Thoughts like, "Damn. This just ain't right"
Overworked, underslept, oppressed, and possessed
I was against the odds
A vicious game of Russian roulette

Now I'm standin on the stage
Gazing on to the crowd
They're all chanting my name
And it seems so loud
I wanna take a bow
And thank you all for comin out

For givin me a shoulder
That's what L.O.A.E's about

Lend me your shoulder when I'm tired
Without a word, hug me with your small arms
Baby, look at me straight in the eyes
So I can feel your warmth when we touch, lady

You carefully ask me how my day was
My eyes grow wide because you're the first
I can't believe how accurate you intuition is You've noticed the shadow on my face

I can't erase it though I try to hide it with a smile
But it hurts more as time goes by
I try to be a man and pretend it's fine
But I end up not being honest with you

I've never learned how to lean on someone
But I learned one thing clearly, how to stand alone
Sometimes, I wanna ask you
To lend me your shoulder too
In this marathon without a finish line

Whenever I want to quit
Quietly held me and comfort me
I want to ask you, if it's not too much
I'll lean on you for tonight, hold me

Lend me your shoulder when I'm tired
Without a word, hug me with your small arms
Baby, look at me straight in the eyes

So I can feel your warmth when we touch, lady

Let me tell you a story, the life of a kid
Los Angeles to Seoul, tryin to make it big

So I can feel your warmth when we touch, lady

No matter how strong and simple I am
When I need to cry, I need you
Even if I run out of breath and hold back tears
When it's hard to handle, I need you

I want to lean on your shoulder and tell you my heart

Lend me your shoulder when I'm tired
Without a word, hug me with your small arms
Baby, look at me straight in the eyes
So I can feel your warmth when we touch, lady
