

Silver Linings

Obscura

We left in empathy, our faith, our lost endeavour
Through sanctity enslaved, in a world full of lies
In vain, forlorn, in silent misery
In remnants of time, we unchained the sacred ties

In aeons lost, embraced in night
A revelation, faithfully elated
In grief we mourn, we ablaze in light
A confession, sinfully created

In silence we fear
We revive our memories
And ascend from the past

In an eternal sphere
We are drenched in solitude
Eclipsed, Eden is near

Within the silver lines, perceived, enlightened bliss
Beyond infinity, eternal cosmic abyss

In solemnity we rise, our creed, our found confessor through morality
Condemned, the inevitable demise

In silence we fear
We revive our memories
And ascend from the past

In an eternal sphere
We are drenched in solitude
Eclipsed, Eden is near

Within the silver lines, perceived, enlightened bliss
Beyond infinity, eternal cosmic abyss

We left in empathy, our faith, our lost endeavour
Through sanctity enslaved, in a world full of lies
In vain, forlorn, in silent misery
In remnants of time, we unchained the sacred ties

In aeons lost, embraced in night
A revelation, faithfully elated
In grief we mourn, we ablaze in light
A confession, sinfully created

In silence we fear
We revive our memories
And ascend from the past

In an eternal sphere
We are drenched in solitude
Eclipsed, Eden is near