Oceans Of Slumber

I've been choking for way too long on the poison that you take
And though it seems like a rapid decline you believe it's the only way

I can't let you slip today

I understand how it feels inside to be here yet so far away

Yet I cannot let you go

Misery born in me

My heart has turned to stone

And now I see just a little too late

Were you dreading the end, dreading my friend?

And maybe now that you're so far gone

It's enough to effect a change in you

To bring the truth, plead and bleed it for all that you've got

When it's all that you want and it's all that you're not

I'm on my knees with my hands to the sky

As you bleed your whole life away

Can't you see I'm a man in this life and born in misery, lost in pain?

Why don't we just bury ourselves

Because this life is killing me

Enslaved?

I'm not enslaved

The consequence of life, in the end, is death

The beauty in between is eternal

I'm on my knees with my hands to the sky

As you bleed your whole life away

Can't you see I'm and man in this life born in misery lost in pain?

I cannot let you go

My heart has turned to stone
