

The Waters Rising

Oceans Of Slumber

I'm drowning in your sorrow
In the belly of your cravings
In the darkness of your despair
I float face down

(You) Can you take me to the ocean side?
(You) Can you take me to the water's edge?

See the devil called me here
Says my name like a story
Holds my blood on the tip of her tongue
She pulls me down into her lust

In the dark we're glowing
We're Clawing

(You) Can you take me to the ocean side?
(You) Can you take me to the water's edge?
(Can you) Can you make these memories come to life?
(You) And reveal what's hidden deep inside me?

You gave birth to this longing,
Along loins made of stone
The light you have eaten from the sky, yea
Pitch black, bleak, and gnawing

(She sees) everything
(She sees) deep inside me

I called to the ocean side
I came to the water's edge
I'm sinking down to where the lights gone out.
I'll purge what's hidden inside

Demented and screaming
I have myself to blame

Demented and screaming
I have myself to blame

I'm dying to get anywhere she might be.
I'm dying to get anywhere she might be.

I called to the ocean side
I came to the water's edge
We're forever
We're forever
We're forever in your despair

Soaking in the aftermath of what we are
Soaking in the aftermath of what we are

I float
Face down
Waiting
To be found
So I float face down

Waiting
To be found
To be found