Some things are unending Persisting, pushing us to break And I am done, I am done Pretending I'm not drowning in its wake

Because time passes by
Just like rain falling through my fingers
And though night becomes the day
And seasons change
The pain, it always lingers

It never goes away

The light is warm but the shadow remains
In cracks in the pavement and lines in your face
And I am done, I am done
Pretending this will ever go away

But time passes by
Just like rain falling through my fingers
And though night becomes the day
And seasons change
The pain, it never goes away
Yeah, time passes by
Just like rain falling through my fingers
And though night becomes the day
And seasons change
The pain, it always lingers

I hope wherever you are
That you're finally free
I hope you've found your peace

The grief's like a wave There's love in the pain You know where your heart is When you feel it break When loss is a shipwreck And sadness a sea Hearts of gold and stone All sink The grief's like a wave There's love in the pain You know where your heart is When you feel it break When loss is a shipwreck And sadness a sea Hearts of gold and stone All sink

Time passes by
Just like rain falling through my fingers
And though night becomes the day
And seasons change
The pain, it never goes away
Yeah, time passes by
Just like rain falling through my fingers

And though night becomes the day And seasons change The pain, it always lingers