

Back Around

Ole 60

Everyday I pray that sun don't set
Everyday it finds a way to hide behind the trees
Well the dark brings the cold, takes my breath, makes me sweat
And the cold it often brings me to my knees
I find it hard to see you when I dream
Least the you I knew before you grew so tired of me
And I hope you know it seems as though you've finished moving on Well I'd kill a man to take your hand and hold it through the dawn

I wish that I could tell you what it means
I swear that I do care for you no matter how it seems
Oh and I ain't seen the sun since you been gone
I'd still kill a man to take your hand and hold it through the dawn

Maybe you should meet me in the morning
Given that the morning ever comes
Maybe I should try and close my eyes and pray tonight
That I'd see you as you were when we's in love
Maybe I should jump and reach for Heaven
Hell right now I'm so damn high I think I might could pull it down
Oh but you ain't by my side to brave this never ending night
And I'm terrified of landing on the ground
Cause I know that you ain't coming back around
