

Bath Bomb

Olive Klug

You told me that I'm a ball of glitter
I told you that you're watery and warm
So if you lie here next to me for just a couple minutes
Well explode into brilliant little bomb

It's been said
Don't lose your head
The night is young
What a waste
That they'll never taste
The sparkle on the tip of your tongue

Up the coast we sing along to Joni
Willing California to be home
The afternoon sun casts a shimmer down the one
I used to prefer this drive alone

It's been said
Don't lose your head
While the night is young
What a waste
That they'll never get to taste
The sparkle on the tip of your tongue

The tangerine
Fractaling
Till it fades into the black
Two twin peaks
Erupting
But lava turns to ash

I told you you're a ball of glitter
You told me that you're softening but scared
So I'll put your boxers on, you'll hide under the covers
Everything but our bodies will be bare

It's been said
Don't rush ahead
To the easy part
It's not a race
But we can't control the pace
Of the water and the heat, we're a perfect recipe
Of our sparkly silly little bubbly bath bomb hearts
