

Rain

Olive Klug

Lately I've been replaying all of my mistakes
Daydreaming, during stoplights
Wasting days away
I could call it going with the flow
But my dear, deep down I know my soul is sleeping
Hibernating through the summer
Waiting around for the weather to match her tears
Overly excited for the California sun to disappear

I'll sing a love song to the first cloud I see in the sky
Thank you so much, for coming by
I'm gonna slide down the flooded sidewalk
I'll dance until I can't walk
Babe please rain, rain, rain on me
Bring me to my knees
Babe please rain, rain, rain on me
Let me feel at home in my own body

Lately I've been dizzy off of cheap red wine
Pretending that I'm lonely
Spending too much time inside
I know I'm not an introvert, but I stay quiet when it hurts to be
Sweating in the small
Just let me, shiver through the fall
Cause I wade through a sea of evergreen
Setting foot toward the north
I feel that water wash me clean

I'll write a love song to the first cloud I see in the sky
Thank you so much, for coming by
I'm gonna slide down the flooded sidewalk
I'll dance until I can't walk
Babe please rain, rain, rain on me
Bring me to my knees
Babe please rain, rain, rain on me
Let me feel at home in my own body
Let me feel at home in my own body
