

Anything

Ollie

So maybe there's no stopping now
There's so much left to say
No, there's nothing I would change
I know I can do anything
I can do anything

It's been a crazy five years since I started this
I've put every ounce of my soul and my heart in this
I've had people come and go, I been battling these lows
But I just can't see a way I depart from this
Gave up a lot to see the place that I am
If I had the chance to go back, I'd do this again
I've done everything wrong at least a couple times
But I can see the vision, I know it's gon' work in the end
And all the crying, all the time
All the pain, I'll be fine
Didn't listen to opinions, was driven writin' these lines
Knew to rest, did the work, every day, every night
Always knew that this would happen in the back of my mind
It's still not done yet, got a long ways to go
But we accomplished so much from a basement though
A lot of old days I wish I could relive
Pray that when I have kids, they gon' be proud what I did

So maybe there's no stopping now
Nothing I would change
I know I can do anything
I can do anything
No matter what is in my way
I fight it all the same
Nothing I would change
I know I can do anything
I can do anything

And through it all, I still question if I'll ever make it
Or if I'll end up that local rapper who's almost famous
Yeah, these some scary thoughts
I hope I'm makin' people proud with everything I drop
Tryna please the whole world, maybe that's my problem
Lately takin' on so much that I can barely solve 'em
Just tryna make it to the top while my grandparents are still alive
Huh, speaking of them, I should probably call 'em
Sometimes I wonder if I'm still who my parents raised
Sometimes I get hurt and misbehave
Sometimes I care what other people say and question if I changed
Damn, I guess I'm doin' okay
Tryna work more and talk less
Shake hands with my enemies and tell 'em, "God bless"
Like, now I focus on the past, only focus where I'm at
'Cause none of us know exactly how much time's left

So maybe there's no stopping now
Nothing I would change
I know I can do anything
I can do anything

No matter what is in my way
I fight it all the same
There's nothing I would change
I know I can do anything
I can do anything

Yeah, this song's for dreamers, the kids who never fit in
Who always looked at the world a little different
I've been in those shoes, back in my highschools
Writin' rap songs then was never seen as cool
They respect you 'til you different, then they scared of you
Try to put you down because you doin' what they scared to do
Jealous of your confidence, and that they'll try to tear in two
Hate somebody's dreams and a person that they barely knew
That's the world though, tearin' each other down
Same treatment that I got inside my own town
Made me feel like I was nothin' in my own self
Guess that's why I started this without no help
And I'm not perfect either, I've messed up like I said
But we don't need to push each other down to get ahead
Wrote most these rap songs layin' in my bed
Who would believe late-night thoughts would turn to bread?

So maybe there's no stopping now
Nothing I would change
I know I can do anything
I can do anything
No matter what is in my way
I fight it all the same
Nothing I would change
I know I can do anything
I can do anything
