

Cold Arrival

Once Human

I ran so blind
Into the blades of your life
Gray and disguised
And peeled my eyes
As they unfurled
The colors of your world cut like a knife
Open wide
Lesions unhealed absorbed the atmosphere
And killed your fight
Prism inside, crushed in two
Devours light with you

Cold arrival
Cold arrival

Sun on your face is gone and haunting me
All of the ways that you'd alleviate
Your heart, your head
Dawn in the dark
Oh, you radiate part of the soul that won't let you fade away
(Away)

Endure

Cauterize the vein of memory
That suffocates mirth of final days
In crimson lakes
Unearth the cage of my chest
To bury you to rest

There is no fight anymore, no
Thought it would be a battle
Not a war
Let go of why you're in a hole
I know to hold on
To who you were before

Cold Arrival
Cold Arrival

Sun on your face is gone and haunting me
All of the ways that you'd alleviate
Your heart, your head
Dawn in the dark
Oh, you radiate part of the soul that won't let you fade away

My visions, strong in my denial
It's so vicious when young life expires
Still picture, wrong frame of mind
I know to hold on
To who you were before
