

Her Song

Open Hand

She stares down at these streets and cries
All the dreams have dried up and gone away
And she feels one day her life might change its ways
Until she hides what's deep inside

Trying so hard not to expose her lies
She's ready now

I know she's down

Her flame burns twice as bright but only half as long
She looks down inside, she melts away to her song

She stares down at these streets and cries
All the dreams have dried up and gone away
And she feels one day her life might change its ways
Until she hides what's deep inside

Trying so hard not to expose her lies
She's ready now

I know she's down

Her flame burns twice as bright but only half as long
She looks down inside, she melts away to her song