

December

Our Mirage

It must have been hours that I spent
Walking through this town and it never ends
I was staring right into your eyes
When I lied and said that I'll be back by sunrise

I know that I am not the strongest person, no
Oh God, give me the strength to finally let go
Yeah, to finally let go

The days are fading
I can feel that it's December
The snow is covering my heart
And the cold is crawling up my veins

This winter is something
That I always will remember
Days will come and days will go
But my soul is trapped beneath the snow

My soul is trapped beneath the snow
My soul is trapped beneath the

I can feel the liquor burning
Running down my throat
Maybe it will help to numb the pain
While writing down this note

I never said goodbye
But I got nothing left this time
Even though you'd deserve a farewell
But there is nothing left that I could tell

After all this time
I'm still breathing, I'm still breathing
So why did I ever
Ever stop believing, ever stop believing?

The days are fading
I can feel that it's December
The snow is covering my heart
And the cold is crawling up my veins

This winter is something
That I always will remember
Days will come and days will go
But my soul is trapped beneath the snow

After all this time, I'm still breathing
So why did I ever stop believing?
I'm moving on, I can proudly say that I made it until here
Now I got the chance to prove myself another year

I know that I am not the strongest person, no
Oh God, give me the strength
Now I can finally let go

The days are fading

I can feel that it's December
The snow is covering my heart
And the cold is crawling up my veins

This winter is something
That I always will remember
Days will come and days will go
But my soul is trapped beneath the snow