Fading

Our Mirage

I can feel your hand
Buried deep down inside my chest
You are holding my Heart
So you can push the dark aside

Who knew that it would come so far
That I am sitting here
Staring at my scars
(I'm fading, I'm fading)
You ripped the skin off of my arms
So you can see my veins
Cut me open
To check if I'm alive,

And then I hear your voice again
(Your voice)
Screaming that these days will end

Who are you to say that you can help me before I fade away?
(I'm fading, I'm fading)
And Who are you to say that I should listen?
But I guess I should admit that you're a part of me
But I guess I should admit that you're a part of me

I know I shouldn't walk away
I should stop and now return
You are there, so I can change myself
But I guess I'll never learn

And then I hear your voice again
(Your voice)
Screaming that these days will end

Who are you to say that you can help me before I fade away?
(I'm fading, I'm fading)
And Who are you to say that I should listen?
But I guess I should admit that you're a part of me
Who are you to say that you can help me before I fade away?
(I'm fading, I'm fading)
And Who are you to say that I should listen?
But I guess I should admit that you're a part of me

I can feel your hand
Buried deep down inside my chest
(I'm fading, I'm fading)
You are holding my Heart
So you can push the dark aside

Who are you to say that you can help me before I fade away?
(I'm fading, I'm fading)
And Who are you to say that I should listen?
But I guess I should admit that you're a part of me
Who are you to say that you can help me before I fade away?
(I'm fading, I'm fading)
And Who are you to say that I should listen?
But I guess I should admit that you're a part of me
