

Siren

Overcoats

I feel the weight of many worlds on my shoulders
Live the broken dreams of all the others
Please don't pull me down, I think I'm drownin'
This is not my burden to carry

Girl, let him go, let him go
Wash away the dirt he covered you in
Girl, I should know, I should know
When he sails away, it's for your own good

When the sirens call, get ready for the fall
When the sirens call, you're gonna lose it all
When the sirens call
When the sirens call

I feel the weight of many worlds on my shoulders
Lay your dreams and fragile things down on me
Please don't pull me down, I think I'm drownin'
I can't keep you safe when they come for me

When the sirens call, get ready for the fall
When the sirens call, you're gonna lose it all
When the sirens call
When the sirens call

Girl, let him go, let him go
Wash away the dirt he covered you in
Girl, I should know, I should know
When he sails away, it's for your own good
When he sails away, it's for your own good
