

The Hardest Part

Overcoats

I been working so hard to be out on my own
Exploring new places and trying to grow, but I
Keep thinking about a life I didn't lead
First apartment on the Lower East Side
I'd hate the noise but you'd love the light Wondering what could've been

Wish I could go back but I can't

Life goes on, we'll never know
That's the hardest part about letting you go

When I'm traveling and I see a beautiful view
It all means nothing 'cause I don't have you
It didn't work out the way we planned
I don't know how I'm gonna love again
But it was my choice in the end
I hope you understand

Wish I could go back but I can't

Life goes on, we'll never know
That's the hardest part about letting you go

I know this life will go
I don't know what the future holds

Life goes on, we'll never know
That's the hardest part about letting you go

And life goes on, we'll never know
That's the hardest part about letting you go

Nothing should feel the same
Nothing could feel the same
Nothing should feel the same
Nothing could feel the same