

You Kept Me

Parabelle

You said it right so many times it still repeats in my mind I hate the way you make the words useless and stale instead and I have seen enough to know We're gonna fall down, if there's a reason to stop then I can't find it right now Cuz we're both giving in, step out of yourself and give me ever ything

You kept me so caught up in your wreckage My sins are burned in and they're calmed by the comfort of your skin
Cuz I am the ocean and you are the rain
We might be different but we're one in the same

You fell in love and you shouldn't of, it still repeats in your touch
I hate the way we miss the mark just left of center there Disheveled self-inflicted, you're borderline safe and sound but you're the one that's making me bad
We don't stop when it hurts so it gets even worse

You kept me so caught up in your wreckage
My sins are burned in and they're calmed by the comfort of your
skin
Cuz I am the ocean and you are the rain
We might be different but we're one in the same

She said your back's against the wall, I push her back against the wall

You kept me so caught up in your wreckage
My sins are burned in and they're calmed by the comfort of your
skin
Cuz I am the ocean and you are the rain
We might be different but we're one in the same

You made it rough, I made it rough till we both had enough
