

When You Move

Parachute

I remember
City lakeside in September
We watched the sun come up, leaves drift yellow from the shore
You slipped out of your clothes, broke the surface where you dove

Never been so in love
Water's never been so cruel
Blurring out the shape you make, scattering the lines of you
When you move
When you move
When you move

Swimming over
You eased out up to your shoulders
You told me not to look, stole a glance while you were turned Droplets left your skin, diamonds following your curves

Never been so in love
Water's never been so cruel
Running down your silhouette, tracing every part of you
When you move
When you move

Then the sun broke through
The fog was lifting up
I was so transfixed
As you were drying off
When you looked at me
Eyes the deepest blue
There was nothing else
It was only you

When you move
When you move
(I never been so in love,
I never been so in love)
When you move
(I never been so in love,
I never been so in love)
