

I want to be your light again

Parcels

I remember when we were cool
Broken hearts breaking into swimming pools
And getting high behind the school
Chased out of the festival
I remember when it was ours
Stop time, watching while the waves pass
Lying silent in the dark
I remember the spell you cast

I want to be your light again
Again, again

I remember when we were green
Five people and two sets of keys
Trying so hard to be seen
Street band, groceries
I remember the green pills
Sky-rise, wonder if I'm here still
And heading back to the hotel
I remember the way you smell

I want to be your light again
Again, again
I want to be your fight again
Again, again

I remember the red dirt
Long drive, somewhere on the outskirts
Trying hard to break the curse
In the backseat getting burned
I remember the school bell
Broken plates at show and tell
I remember how they'd yell
Can't remember it all that well

I want to be your light again

I remember the white wine
Four litres for 11.99
Spinning round on a clothesline
I remember the starry nights
I remember your dad died
Packing boxes of records that he left behind
I don't remember if you cried
I still feel him around sometimes

I remember it felt good
Get as far away from there as I could and
Try to seem misunderstood
I remember the firewood
I remember the weekends
From friends to lovers, and back to friends
It didn't matter in the end
It didn't matter in the end
