

The Boy In Your Eyes

Pati Yang

From a distance you look so familiar like a figurine moving still feels like this time you have walked too far and I can't see your tears

When things couldn't get any better she leaves you and you have to let her 'cuz there's always time we're not even back where we've started I am wading in screams but I am silent waiting for tides

Look what you're doing to me that's not what heaven should be
I am alone
do we dare end this war why don't we bury our swords we'll be judged from above

I've been seeking friends but my friends are sick they say a man likes to run -
so girl, if the kid in you still dares to climb a dead tree 'means there's light in your eyes you need life in your arms

the sea will heal the cuts we're not even back where we started he's resting my head on your wires
the boy in your eyes

Look what he's doing to me
I am alone

Let the good times roll tonight sun shines twice
if you let there be time

I am alone

I'm my own enemy on your shield
